Verse 1

Do you hear the sound In the trembling ground
In the air, the wait so long
For the sole keepsake Of an old heartache
Is a whisper, an echo, a song

I find my way back home By the birds and bones
By the westbound sun To a place I'm known
The streets will remember even if I don't I'll find my way back home

Verse 2

Now a thorn finds place In a torn shoelace
As green entwines the night
And the hymnal freights Resonate
Lead me on by sweet starlight

Chorus 2

I find my way back home By the words and moans
By a promise made and a promise owed
As gravity pulls from a moonlit road I'll find my way back home
